

Sukkot or Feast of Tabernacles is a Biblical feast. My family just came back from celebrating it with our congregation.

During the festival, we sleep and eat in temporary houses (i.e. tents, rv's). This is to remind us that the Israelites lived in temporary dwellings while they were in the wilderness. This also reminds us that we are only sojourning here on earth. A friend of mine also pointed out that living in a temporary dwelling reminds us that we are to take shelter in God and not trust in our house.

Sukkot is a time of rejoicing. It is a shadow of the wedding between Yeshua (Jesus) and Israel.

God instructions for Sukkot are in Leviticus 23:33-44. The last chapter in Zechariah talks about how Sukkot will be kept even after Yeshua's return.

Sukkot is already over this year, but I hope you can celebrate this joyous feast next year.

Shalom,
Matthew Day
